The returns are all in and Globe's celebration was the biggest and best in the territory "just as advertised."

Poker playing in Tucson has been prohibited by city ordinance, but the devotees of the national game can still play for drinks and matches.

Wonder if the good people of Douglas have learned yet that Napoleon Bonaparte is dead and that Charles J. Bonaparte is the attorney general of the United States.

It isn't even safe to predict rain when you see it coming in Globe. Jupiter Pluvius seems to have entered into a conspiracy against this vicinity which would not be so bad if he did not four flush so much.

In upholding Calhoun's attitude in refusing to deal with the striking "Frisco" car men, the Los Angeles Times counsels "Stand pat, Calhoun!" He may, but since Honey started probing the United Railroads it is becoming more and more impossible for the people of that city to stand Pat Calhoun.

The Phoenix ball team knew that the fourth game of the series would be lost before the game started. The manager of the visitors learned that the thermometer Sunday noon had registered only 106 and he knew that it was all off. It is asking too much of Phoenix players to play any kind of a game in freezing weather.

AS TO ITALIAN IMMIGRANTS

In view of the frequency of the so-called "Black Hand" outrages in various parts of the country, especial interest will attach to the statement of Congressman Bennett of New York, who is now in Italy as a member of the federal commission appointed to investigate the immigration problem. He is reported to have made the discovery that the return to Italy of so many Italians from the United States is due to the fact that they are safer in Italy from the secret societies.

This is especially interesting in connection with Emily Fogg Meade's report on "The Italian on the Land," published by the department of commerce and labor, on which we commented recently. If such is indeed the case, it is a sorry reflection on the police methods of this country. It also goes far toward proving that we need a stricter enforcement of the present laws against the admission into this country of members of the criminal classes. It has not been so many years ago that the Italian Mafia was unpleasant notoriety in this country, and because the people of New Orleans took the question of punishment into their own hands it cost this government a large sum of money in the form of an indemnity. Now it seems that the Black Hand society is becoming as powerful and as terrifying as the Mafia was. Attention has been focused on this society recently by the murder of a six-year-old child near New Orleans by members of the band, who had stolen the child for ransom.

In this connection the work of the National Liberal Immigration League deserves attention. It has taken up agitation in favor of deporting criminal aliens and urges the raising of the standard of citizenship by prolonging the probationary term and by requiring candidates for naturalization to give a guaranty of good conduct and to show a working knowledge of our institutions.

Our laws at present provide for the exclusion of paupers and diseased and other undesirable classes, but it is evident that the clause about the criminal classes is evaded extensively. Normal Italian immigration is desirable. The honest, industrious Italians make good laborers and are efficient, hard working and thrifty, but the secret societies that fatten on the earnings of this class should be subdued in some way. One plan proposed by the National Liberal Immigration League seems to have much to commend it. It is that immigrants should be put on a probationary term of ten years, and if during that period they are convicted of crime, they shall not be put into prison and then turned loose on the American community, but shall at once be deported, never again to land on these shores.—Washington Herald.

VALUE OF THE X-RAY

Within a Decade It Has Become Almost Indispensable to Surgeons

As an adjunct to surgery, the Roentgen ray has become indispensable, and there are few surgeons in America to-day who do not employ it as a diagnostic in their general practice. The conduct of many operations which are now performed with comparative ease was rendered extremely difficult, if not impossible, before its introduction. By its use it is possible to determine the nature and position of fractures, the presence of foreign bodies, and the surgical treatment necessary; by its use, also, the condition of the heart and lungs can be determined, and the size, position and shape of the stomach and intestines determined with considerable accuracy. Tuberculosis, pneumonia, heart trouble, diabetes and various disorders of the bladder and kidneys can be recognized sooner by this than any other means, and their progress often arrested at an earlier stage than would have been possible before the advent.

There are, unquestionably, many eminent physicians in this country who hold that as a therapeutic agent the Roentgen ray has accomplished comparatively little, and that it has signally failed to fulfill the promises made for it in its infancy, but those who are employing it in their daily practice find it a powerful lieutenant in the treatment of various disorders, for many of which, before the advent of the Roentgen ray, no practical remedy had been prescribed; in fact, it is an open question whether, at the present moment, it is not accomplishing as much as a therapeutic agent as it is as a diagnostic.

There is probably no ailment to which flesh is heir so destructive or so widespread as consumption—the great white plague. Indiscriminate in its attacks, it attacks rich and poor, black and white, with almost equal fatality. During the past few years a determined stand has been made against this disease by the medical profession, and every new agency which seemed to promise even temporary relief has been faithfully tried. Two of the most important of these are Koch's tuberculin and Maragliano's more recent "injection of specific tuberculous bacilli" directly into the lungs—a specific obtained by injecting bovine animals with a water extract of living tubercular bacilli, and extracting a serum therefrom.

As an auxiliary in the treatment of this disease the Roentgen ray has proved particularly valuable, especially in the first and final stages. While in the final stages the inevitable end has never been averted, the hemorrhages, night sweats and fevers have been controlled, the pain has been allayed, the general conditions made more comfortable, and in many cases the patient's life prolonged. In the earlier stages the appetite, weight and strength have been materially increased, and the general condition improved so as to enable the patient to make a much better fight against the progress of this dread affection.

Has consumption been actually cured in its incipient stages? is a question few physicians would be ready to answer in the affirmative at the present time, but many, no doubt, have their private opinion. It is certainly an indisputable fact that persons possessing many of the preliminary symptoms—some, even, who have been advised to that last resort of the consumptive, the sanitarium—have been apparently cured and with the passing of time there has been no recurrence of the malady.—Van Norden Magazine.

CLARK LOSES SUIT

Owner of United Verde Will Have to Make Accounting in Full

By a decision of Judge Amend, in special session of the supreme court, made public yesterday, Ex-Senator William A. Clark must account for all the dealings of the United Verde Copper company, involving a sum of more than $300,000,000, says a recent New York dispatch.

The decision comes after eight years of litigation, as the result of a suit brought by George A. Treadwell, for the minority stockholders. According to Charles W. Demond, counsel for Mr. Treadwell, the investigation which the court orders will show that Senator Clark now derives an income of $25,000,000 a year from United Verde, much of which, Mr. Demond says, should have been turned over to Treadwell.

Judge Amend's ruling says the sale of the property of the United Verde Copper company to reorganization committee for $500,000, although the property is valued at $90,000,000, was illegal, and the property should revert to the original stockholders.

Treadwell claims this sale was made for the purpose of freeing him out. Judge Amend furthermore holds that Ex-Senator Clark shall permit Treadwell to make a thorough investigation of all the United Verde property, and he shall be permitted to also go through the books of the corporation. "Ex-Senator Clark must now make public all the mysterious methods by which he has conducted the business of United Verde since 1888, when he first came into control of the company," said Mr. Demond last night.

Pointed Paragraphs

If you want a woman to do a certain thing get her to say she won't. Occasionally there is a man wise enough to think poetry without writing it.

The more a woman talks to a man the less he is inclined to sit up and take notice.

Rather than not get into it at all a woman is willing to get the short end of an argument.

Any man who is able to dodge unhappiness is just about as happy as it is possible to be.

When a man's business affairs begin to go wrong his wife thinks it is because he doesn't follow her advice.

If a man occasionally tells a woman how pretty she looks she will forgive most of the other lies he tells her.—Chicago News.

TROY GOLD FIELD YIELDS RICHNESS

Several Claims in New Gold District in Pinal County Change Hands—Believed That New Camp Will Be an El Dorado—First Discovered Years Ago.

Charles E. Brown, one of the discoverers of the rich Troy gold field, in Pinal county, was a visitor at the Blade sanctum Monday and exhibited to us a fine collection of gold nuggets he had taken from his properties. Some of these nuggets are worth $50. He found one nugget which sold for $107. This gold is not the ordinary placer gold found in gravel bars, but is vein gold that has not traveled far from the veins. It has simply been freed by disintegration of the rock in which it had been formed and rolled down and lodged among the adjacent boulders and debris. Two of the blind leads from which it came have been discovered within the boundaries of the C. E. Brown and John Kavanaugh claims. The Brown vein has two pay streaks, one bedded on quartzite and the other on slate. They are small but the ore is nearly half gold, lying in sheets one-fourth of an inch thick and in large nuggets. Mr. Brown has extracted $2,100 worth of gold on his claims since he discovered and located them. The misunderstanding between him and Messrs. Weick and Pickenback of Los Angeles, mention of which was made in the Blade three weeks since, has been amicably adjusted and the claim covering the original discovery has been incorporated and the stock placed on sale in Los Angeles.

Mr. Brown sold one claim to Messrs. John and Thomas Kavanaugh and Jack Clark, and they are at work on the property and are obtaining very satisfactory results.

John Kelley made a location adjacent to the original discovery and sold an interest therein to Jake Bates and Charlie McGee of Kelvina. They also bought the Good Hope claim from Brown. They are at work on a vein four feet in width and the entire four feet averages $6.50 per ton in free gold.

R. H. Renfro and S. E. Brown of Troy have also acquired some valuable holdings near to the original discovery and are at work on the property.

Messrs. Terrill and McGraw of Oklahoma have gotten possession of some good ground in the midst of the gold zone and are now sinking a development shaft.

There is every reason to believe that one of the great gold camps of the west will be established in this rich Troy gold field in the immediate future. Ten foot shafts, sunk for location work, are the deepest openings yet made in the field, but development work will be pushed from this date on and there is hardly a doubt that the quartz strata, so marvelously rich in gold at their surface, will lead to large bonanzas. The rich gold quartz shown us by Mr. Brown is identical in color, texture, richness and general character to that found in the same vicinity by a soldier, over thirty-five years ago and for which Charlie Brown of Tucson has been searching, at odd times, for thirty years past. A company of soldiers was riding over the old government trail, from old Camp Grant, on the San Pedro, to the Pinal range, situated in the lap of the old Silver King mine, this country. Somewhere in the vicinity of Steamboat Springs, the location of the Troy gold discovery, one of the troopers fell out of line and did not join the troop again until it had reached the Pinal range. When reprimanded by the lieutenant in command for lagging behind the company in a section where hostile Apaches were numerous, he exhibited to the astonished officer chunks of quartz that were more than half gold. The lieutenant became excited and tried to induce the trooper to return with him and an escort to the location of the discovery, but the soldier refused, saying he would wait till his term of service expired, then return and locate the ground for himself. Neither threats, persuasion or offers of bribes would induce him to alter his determination in this matter. Some time afterward his company was ordered to the Dakotas and he did not live to return. Charlie Brown of Tucson was here at that time and procured specimens of the ore from the soldier and a slight hint as to the locality in which the trooper found it, and Charlie has always told us it was located somewhere in the vicinity of Steamboat mountain, just east of Troy, just where the recently discovered gold field is located.

C. E. Brown, who contracted rheumatism while panning gold on his new find, left here Monday for Phoenix, overland, on a two months' vacation. He has a good team and wagon and will go from Phoenix to Roosevelt, then to Globe and from the latter place back to Troy. He retained four claims adjoining his original discovery and will develop them after he recovers from the rheumatism. He has mined for gold in Africa, Australia, Alaska and in all the gold camps of Nevada and California, and believes that Pinal county, Arizona, is the best gold field he ever saw. He is not alone in this opinion. Old Pinal is the richest copper, gold, silver and lead field on the face of the earth. Time will confirm this statement.—Florence Blade.

"Certainly," answered Mr. Dustin Stax, merrily. "We always sell a round trip ticket to anybody that wants it."—Washington Star.

PROFESSOR LONG

Says "I'll Make that Man Answer if I Have to Spend Ten Years"

"Why, I'll make that man answer me if I have to spend ten years in digging up the evidence and submitting it to a tribunal made up of the reading, thinking people of the country. I'll travel the length and breadth of Alaska if necessary to get the proofs to establish the assertions I have made and which he has sought to contradict. 'I have sent a man to Labrador to get an Indian out of there who has such proofs, and I am taking evidence each day.'"

As the speaker is Dr. William J. Long and "that man" is Theodore Roosevelt, it is evident that the controversy which Dr. Long was forced upon him when the president branded him as a nature fakir is yet in its infancy.

Dr. Long lectured last night before the congregation of Pilgrim Congregational church, at 121st street and Madison avenue, on "Animal Life and Death."

He did not touch on the controversy between himself and the president, but he did say that pain was one of the greatest boons of nature, because it made plain to the sufferer the fact that there was an injury. If no such warning were given, no steps would be taken to heal the wound and sad results would follow.

"A dog injuring his foot keeps it from the ground because it hurts him to touch the ground," said he. "If he did not have that warning he would keep the foot on the ground, get the hurt impregnated with foreign matter, and have a fester as a result. I venture the assertion," said he, "that if it were not for pain not one boy in ten thousand would grow to manhood. They would cut and hurt and kill themselves before they were five."

When Dr. Long concluded his remarks he was asked for a word on the Long-Roosevelt controversy. "I had intended to remain silent on that until I was fully prepared to make him speak," said he, as his eyes snapped. "He has dashed in and made startling statements accusing others of misrepresentation when he didn't know what he was talking about."

"I intend to make him speak and answer my last challenge or make him the talk of the country. I am getting evidence day by day. It is coming to me from all sources. I have sent a special messenger to Labrador to get an Indian who will make an affidavit as to the truth of some of the assertions I placed in some of my writings. If it is necessary I shall go to Alaska, and go the length of it. I shall spend ten years, if necessary, but when I am ready with my next statement I'll make Theodore Roosevelt break his silence and answer the charges I have already made. I may make other charges."—New York American.

Little Love Letters Wiped Out Debt
There was great rejoicing in the New Brooklyn church yesterday when the last dollar of the debt against the parsonage was paid. The money was raised in a novel manner. Every female member of the church wrote a letter to all the boys that were her schoolmates in bygone days, no matter where they now lived, soliciting contributions. The men members likewise wrote to their schoolgirl sweethearts of long ago.

Many a pleasant correspondence developed and it is said some of the letters were calculated to revive the spark of affection that was kindled when the writers were youngsters, but as husbands and wives were allowed to read one another's letters, not a case of jealousy is recorded.

The money came in so fast that in a short time the entire debt was paid off, and, as the contributions are still coming in, the parsonage will be brightened by a new coat of paint.—Sicklerville, N. J., dispatch to Philadelphia Inquirer.
